Dear Richard

Further to comments on page 4, I accept, though somewhat contemptuously, your right to not to have your name linked in the event that someone cries 'con'. (Though you ought to have considered the possibility that some day you'd 'wash out' when you pooled for your address to go on the flyer.)

However, in order to relieve you of any future responsibility and to satisfy you legally, I hereby PLEASE (!) that if I am ever elected then I will promise to return all applications which come over you. At least this way I might have a chance to salvage some of the applications by enclosing a covering statement detailing the facts of the situation. That way no one could claim that they had been misled by the flyer. That answers the point at the end of the first paragraph of Nicky's letter too, and I don't see what objection you could have to going along with that now.

Bert,

Bert
